

HAPPY MOTHER'S DAY

I heard one time that cleaning when you have kids in the house is like trying to brush your teeth with Oreos. Being a mother today can feel like that sometimes.

“Give her the reward she has earned and let her works bring her praise at the city gate.” (Proverbs 31:31)

Most of the women who exemplify the kind of wife and mother described in Proverbs 31 wouldn't seek the praise they've earned, which is a good indication that they've earned it. Maybe the checklist today would look a little different than the one Solomon got from King Lemuel's mother. But the task of being a godly mother is no less taxing – and just as vital.

I thought about the mothers in my life and what it would take for me to be one. After only a few minutes of honest reflection I realized why I will probably never be a mother.

Ten reasons I will probably never be a mother.

10. I need a checklist to remember what needs to be done.
9. I'm usually the last one to know what's going on.
8. I'm pretty good at remembering birthdays the evening of.
7. I can only do like one or two things at a time.
6. I don't think anyone should cry about a booboo...unless it's mine.
5. I need help finding ketchup at eye level in the fridge.
4. I only kind of understand like three, maybe four emotions.
3. I only have two hands.
2. I am frequently two or three conversations behind.
1. If a cardinal lands on our fence, I can't hear you talking anymore.

Moms, thank you for keeping us all together! I hope today you can sit down in a clean house with a glass of milk and some Oreos. You've earned it!

Dani
