

AS SWEET AS HONEY

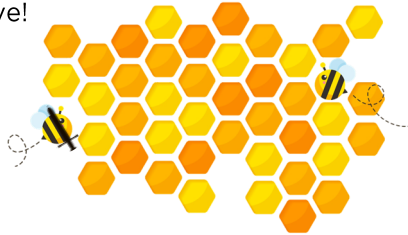

How do you like to use honey? Personally, I love honey in just about everything as a sweetener. A good cup of tea with some honey just hits the spot; or maybe some cornbread with butter and honey on it for a nice snack. Honey has all kinds of awesome uses, not just culinarily! Some of the non-food related uses for honey include: hair and skin moisturizer, healing of minor scrapes, a cough remedy, electrolyte drinks, and a slight antibacterial immune booster. Please take all of those as anecdotal and not medical advice. But the point is, honey is a remarkable substance!

Another non-culinary use that has been found in history was actually as an embalming tool used in the mummification process in some ancient societies. Have you ever noticed that honey doesn't have an expiration date? It's actually true that pure honey doesn't go bad! Bearing all of that in mind, I think it has an interesting Biblical application.

There are a few places where honey is mentioned in the Bible, and most of the time positively. Probably the most notable is the Promised Land being referred to as "flowing with milk and honey." This spoke to the prosperity of the land and the blessing God was giving them, but I think it makes another interesting point. The Promised Land was also looking forward to the eternal promise that we are given as people of God. Consider honey's preservative properties and that it never spoils - we could say the same about God's promise of eternity to us! It's amazing all of the layers that God adds to the way that he loves us. He loves us so thoroughly and so deeply that the analogies he uses are boundless. Maybe next time you use honey you will think of God's love!

In God's Love,

Bin
